Binkley Files on Gingrass Ranch As Homestead

Property Was First Located by Kyuse Jim More Than Forty Years Ago

Loyal John Binkley returned last week from Juneau where he had been to file a homestead entry on what is known as the Gingrass ranch on Farm island.

Mr. Gingrass accompanied Mr. Binkley to Juneau and filed a relinquishment of his claim to the property in order to throw it open for homestead entry.

This property has a rather unusual history for a homestead claim. It was first located in 1878 by J. Rossiter (Cayuse Jim) who, with his partner, Malcolm McThompson, operated a pack train into the Cassiar. During the winter of 1878 Rossiter wintered his mules on the newly located ranch. During the summer of 1879 Rossiter raised a good crop of hay on the property. The Cassiar excitement gradually subsided and Rossiter and McThompson ceased to operate their pack train. Rossiter then sold the ranch to Mose Ireland who owned it for one year.

Ireland sold the ranch to Dr. S. Hall who was in charge of the Presbyterian mission at Wrangell. Dr. Young made use of the property as a farm for the Indian boys of the Presbyterian school then located at Wrangell. After the training school was transferred from Wrangell to Sitka Dr. Young had no further use for the property, and in 1888 he sold it to Judge Wm. G. Thomas. Later Judge Thomas took Geo. H. Barnes into partnership with him. Thomas and Barnes put a few cattle and horses on the ranch. About a year later Thomas sold his interest to Barnes. During the next four or five years Barnes continued to raise horses and cattle on the ranch, and by 1894 there was quite a herd of cattle. On the tenth day of May, 1894, more than a foot of snow fell—something unheard of in this district at that time of the year either before or since. As a result of this unusually late snow nearly all of the cattle died, and Barnes abandoned the property. There had never been any title to the property, the various transfers of ownership having been made by bill of sale.

In 1908 F. E. Gingrass filed on the property as a homestead. He lived on the ranch for three years and practically made his home there for seven years. For the past nine years Mr. Gingrass has endeavored to obtain a title to the property, but it is a well known fact that land patents are not railroaded through in Alaska. Mr. Gingrass stated to the Sentinel that recently he came to the conclusion that he was not likely to live long enough to get a patent, and therefore decided to sign a relinquishment in order that a young man with the greater part of his life ahead of him might file on the property with some hope of eventually obtaining a patent—provided he lives long enough.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams on Saturday, November 6, a daughter. Mother and child doing well.

Craig Finally Gets Custom House; Is Moved from Sulzer

E. R. Stivers of the local U. S. customs office left on the City of Seattle for Petersburg to transfer the customs office at that place. J. C. Allen, who has held the position of deputy collector of customs for some time has recently resigned.

From Petersburg Mr. Stivers will go to the west coast of the Prince of Wales island to transfer the customs office from Sulzer to Craig. The transfer is being made because Craig is near the present trend of traffic and is a greater accommodation to vessels. No appointment of the deputy collector has yet been made, according to a statement from the local office.—Juneau Capital.

Old Fur Post

D. C. Van Gordon, the Pelly Banks trader, who is in town on a business trip, is in charge of one of the oldest fur-trading posts in the Yukon Territory, says the Dawson News of a recent date. The history of the post reaches back more than a century. Old Chief Etney, who thinks he is fully a hundred years old, remembers the post when it flourished in the hands of the Hudson's Bay company, and when it took three years for the goods to reach there after they had left England.

"It is hard to say what age the old chief is," said Mr. Van Gordon. "He looks very old; and he loves to tell stories of times away back. His voice is the strongest part of him. He is well thought of. All the Indians like him, and they sit around, interested, when he is yarning. He has a great number of grandchildren."

"In 1871, or thereabouts, the Hudson's Bay company's post was abandoned. It was a terrible loss to the Natives, for, as Chief Etney says, the Indians depended on the post for supplies, and when it was burned and they could get no supplies or ammunition, many starved to death. The chief says between two and three hundred died. They were born with the old muzzle-loader in their hands; they knew no other weapon; the bow and arrow were forgotten. When they could get no ammunition they could kill no meat."

"The Indians up there come from all parts; some from the Mackenzie, the Peel, the Liard rivers. They speak different tongues, which makes it a bit hard to deal with some of them. They are a peaceful sort of people, but they can't credit all a white man says and does. I have spoken to them about flying machines. It is no use. They cannot understand a man in the air. I show them pictures of flying machines and they listen to me and stare at the pictures, but without a glimmer of comprehension."

"They have a sort of religion," continued Mr. VanGordon. "They believe in a hereafter and a spirit land where they will all go when they die. Now they bury their dead in the ground, but long ago they used to cache them away wherever convenient—up in trees or anywhere else—and I am told some of them were cannibals."

Remember the dates for the Fourth Red Cross Roll Call Nov. 11 to 25.

The firm of Taylor, Drury, Pedlar & Co. was recently found guilty of having moose meat on board their boat, Thistle, contrary to law. As this was the first conviction under a new law, the fine assessed was nominal.

Natives Willing To Turn Totems Over to Town

Proposed Totem Park and Museum for Wrangell May Soon Become Reality

On Monday evening Charley Jones and George Blake appeared before the town council and stated that the majority of the Natives are now willing to turn over to the town nearly all the totems in this section, provided the town would provide some suitable park where the totems could be preserved.

The councilmen were unanimously in favor of the proposition, but unfortunately the town has no funds whatever for the purchase of ground for a park and museum. The street improvements during the past year, together with the new addition to the school house have practically depleted the town treasury.

After some discussion a motion prevailed that the council make application to the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions for the donation of a piece of ground from their holding on Church street.

Since this action was taken by the Council it has been learned that some of the local members of the Presbyterian church are strongly in favor of the proposition, and will recommend to the Board of Home Missions that the request of the Town Council be granted.

The Presbyterian Board of Home Missions owns 7.66 acres, or practically two blocks along Church Street. This property was originally received as a free grant from the government more than 30 years ago, and is exempt from taxes. Less than one-fourth of the property has ever been used.

In 1916 the Wrangell Chamber of Commerce and the Civic Improvement Club united their efforts in a movement for the collection and preservation on the totems of the Wrangell district, but at that time the combined efforts of both organizations failed to result in unanimity of opinion among the Natives in the matter of bringing their totems together for the collection. Consequently the matter was dropped during the latter part of 1916 after $111.50 had been raised by the Civic Improvement club for the purpose of furthering the movement.

Recently the Native people themselves have been discussing the problem of doing something for the preservation of the rapidly decaying totems of this region. And now that they have come to the council of their own accord, offering to turn over their totems to the town it is greatly to be hoped that the town will be able to secure ground in a suitable location for a park and museum. If the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions has the matter brought to their attention in such a manner as will make them understand the significance and importance of the movement for a totem park and museum in Wrangell it will surely not hesitate to grant the request of the town council.

The proposed park and museum would contain the evolutionary history of a race primeval whose transition from the aboriginal to a state of enlightenment is a matter of only three or four generations. The Wrangell museum would contain one of the rarest and most unique exhibits ever offered to public inspection.

In lending its support to this movement the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions would be aiding in the spread of scientific knowledge by visual education in archaeological and historical fields.

Juvenile Smokers Engage Attention of Town Council

One of the matters which claimed the attention of the Town Council at its meeting Thursday night was the matter of the use of tobacco by children. The town marshal was directed to notify every tobacco dealer in Wrangell not to sell tobacco in any form to any child under 17 years of age. The marshal was further directed to advise the tobacco dealers that they are not to sell children tobacco for use by their parents or other adults, except on a written order stipulating the date and quantity of tobacco to be delivered to the child, and this written order cannot be extended to apply to more than one purchase of tobacco at a time.

Valparaiso Mine At Dolomi Will Operate Again

B. A. Eardley has leased the Valparaiso mine at Dolomi, on Prince of Wales Island, to C. H. Dunton for a year. Mr. Dunton is a pioneer mining man of Southeastern Alaska. It is understood that he will operate the mine and mill with a small crew of men. According to reports received from Dolomi, Dunton planned to have the water running in the pipes leading to the mill power plant today. Approximately $200,000 has been spent on the development of the mine, including the construction of a 40-ton mill. The workings were closed down in 1917 owing to the demand for workers in other lines.—Chronicle.

Native Brotherhood Organizes Basketball Team at Douglas

The Alaska Native Brotherhood of Douglas have decided to put a basketball team in the field, and at the meeting of the Douglas camp of the order elected a coach by the name of Jackson to handle the team. Mr. Jackson is a Native who was with the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Active practice has started at the Brotherhood hall on the beach and the players are developing what they hope will be a championship team. As soon as they get some practice they will be out with a challenge to play all the different teams on the Channel and teams from outside points.—Douglas Island News.

Wolves on the Increase; A Scourge to Game and a Menace to Man

Wolves appear to be greatly on the increase, according to the report of returning hunters. As wolves do not add anything to the wealth of the territory, and cause a total loss of all they destroy, some action should be taken to rid the country of them. Their pelts are not sufficiently valuable to induce trappers to hunt them for fur, and it has been found necessary in other places for the Government to give a bounty for every wolf killed. As the caribou and the moose are a great asset to this northland, and these two species are the chief sufferers from the ravages of the packs, no time should be lost in devising some means of exterminating these destructive animals, or at least so thinning their numbers that they should not be both a scourge to the game and a menace to man.—Whitehorse Star.

News Notes From All Over The Northland

George Artell Fights Duel With Three Giant Grizzlies. George Wins

Tolovana postoffice has been closed and Mrs. W. J. Vachon, who has been postmistress for years, has left for the Outside for good.

The large rock in the mouth of Seymour Narrows may be removed next year by the Canadian government. It has long been a menace to navigation.

News of a daring battle with three large and powerful grizzly bears is brought from the Mayo country by Paul S. Hogan, member of the Yukon council, who has just returned from a trip to that region. Mr. Hogan tells the story as follows:

"George Artell, an old time hunter and prospector of the upper Stewart region, was called upon a few days ago to face three ferocious grizzlies in the woods, and before the session was concluded Artell had driven cold lead through the carcasses of the three big beasts. I saw Artell within 12 hours of the battle, and, believe me, he was still a little nervous from the effects of the trying experience."

"Artell had gone over from Hight across a divide to the McQuesten valley to get some game for a crew of miners. He was about 10 miles from the Hight creek dredge. He explained that he was at the edge of a thicket when he heard a growl, and looked up to see a monster grizzly bearing down upon him, showing his teeth and ready for battle. The bear came upon the man so suddenly and the surprise was so great that Artell, notwithstanding great experience as a hunter and his alertness, could not get his rifle into action before the bear was almost upon him. But, with unerring hand and eye, the hunter drew a bead, and just in the nick of time. The bullet went crashing through the skull of Mr. Grizzly, and the big brute fell almost at the feet of the man. Not more than 15 feet was between them when the fatal shot took effect."

"Artell scarcely had dispatched grizzly number one than number two broke into view, and immediately upon his heels came number three. The encounter with the first one had made the man's blood race, and he was all keyed up over the encounter. Now here was an intensified situation with two huge ones to face at once. Luckily, they were a little farther away than the first, and Artell had his rifle already in hand. He had no time to lose. Fine calculations were out of place. It was simply a case of act, and act at once. He did not even stop to think of home, but put the artillery into action. The bullets went home to each big brute, and the two big fellows dropped in their tracks. Both were coming straight for him, and with blood in their eyes, said Artell. He certainly was looking into the jaw of what would have been certain death that day had he not been properly armed and have been a crack shot. Artell is a man with a nerve, and he proved it."

"The battle took place about August 1. Artell had a repeating rifle, and says that the way he pumped the lead into the bears possibly rivaled the fashion in which the old Bolye Yukon battery showered the Fritzies in France."

"Artell is the man who mushed four days last winter to vote at Granville for the dries. He mushed all the way in over the snow from McQuesten. In the plebiscite of 1916 he poled a boat up the McQuesten all one day and two nights, taking up a cargo of dry voters, and they got to the polls just 15 minutes after they closed. That was the time the dries lost by three votes."—Dawson News.

Walk on Lower Church Street to Be Rebuilt

During the past year lower Church street was condemned by the town council as being unsafe for traffic. As soon as the street was condemned some of the property holders started a petition for a new street walk, but the signatures of a sufficient number of property holders to represent two-thirds of the property along the street could not be obtained. As a result, a deplorable condition has existed for the past several months. The street has not only been unsafe for pedestrians, but has occasioned considerable inconvenience to auto trucks. All the lumber for the new walk on St. Michael street had to be hauled from the saw mill via McKinnon avenue, or more than twice the distance that would have been necessary had the street not been unsafe for traffic.

At the meeting of the council last week the street committee reported that Willis Hoagland had signed the petition and that with his signature the required two-thirds of the property abutting on the street was represented. The clerk was directed to post notices advertising for bids.

A special meeting of the council was called for Monday evening for the purpose of opening the bids. After all bids had been read the contract was awarded to Charles Roos who submitted the lowest bid.

The Fairbanks News-Miner has raised its price on its daily and is now issuing an eight-page weekly for out-of-the-city residents which promises to reach a field untouched by the daily. The majority of Alaskan editors are beginning to realize that a good weekly beats a poor daily, and are turning their endeavors to that branch of the newspaper field. The Weekly News-Miner is a newsy, interesting paper and should receive the support of the Tanana valley to a man.—Valdez Miner.

Fairbanks residents are in the pay this winter and care no more for the high cost of living than a Jamaica nigger. Every available cold storage place is filled with the carcasses of moose and caribou, and the potato crop was a large one.

PROCLAMATION

By the Governor

Three hundred years ago, the Pilgrim Fathers landed on the shores of Massachusetts and founded a nation.

Two years ago the armies of the civilized world, imbued with that same love of freedom held by the founders of this country, forced the powers of tyranny to their knees to sue for peace.

Throughout the war now ended, with its unfading memories, the United States did its share nobly and uncomplainingly, led in all patriotic activities by the men and women of Alaska.

We are thankful that the people of our country are returning to peaceful pursuits without the serious disturbances accompanying the readjustment of conditions in other countries, and that in the recent political campaigns, the defeated parties have accepted the verdict of the electorate, confident that the United States, safeguarded under the Constitution, will furnish to the world an example of free and democratic government.

Now, THEREFORE, I, Thomas Riggs, Jr., Governor of Alaska, do proclaim Thursday, November 25th a Holiday, to be observed throughout the Territory of Alaska as Thanksgiving Day to be celebrated according to the dictates of religious conscience in the home and in the church, by appropriate ceremonies and prayers of gratitude.

Given under my hand and the Seal of the Territory of Alaska, in Juneau, the capital, this 11th day of November, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty and of the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Forty-fifth.

THOMAS RIGGS, JR.
Governor.

By the Governor:
K. J. SOMMERS,
Ex-officio Secretary of Alaska.

The freighter Valdez recently took 100 tons of pebbles used in the ball mill at Latouche to the Alaska Gastineau mill at Juneau. The Latouche company has installed another method of milling.

Dan Callahan, a pioneer resident of Fairbanks lost a stack of hay containing about 10 tons one day last week. As hay is worth nearly $200 per ton the loss was a heavy one.

While U. S. Deputy Marshal Joe Miller of Fairbanks was traveling up the river on one of the boats recently he was made the victim of a practical joke which afforded much amusement to passengers and crew. He had a bunch of furs which he had collected down the river, and while one of the passengers engaged Joe in conversation the skipper of the vessel slipped in and stole one of his fine bearskins, giving it to one of the Native crew and coaching him to sell the skin to Joe. Miller was overjoyed to find a match for the skin he thought he had and purchased it. He came out of his stateroom one mad marshal and it took the entire crew and passengers to save the Indian's life.

Wrangell Deer Reaches Seattle

Mayor's Office
Seattle, Washington

October 30, 1920.

Honorable J. G. Grant, Mayor,
Wrangell, Alaska.

My dear Mayor Grant:

Upon receipt of your cablegram of October 15th arrangements were made as suggested for the transportation of the big buck deer to Seattle from Wrangell; your cable of October 20th was also received.

On behalf of the City of Seattle I wish to thank you for your very thoughtful act in arranging to give this deer to the City of Seattle for its Park Department.

I will also be glad if you will express our appreciation to Captain Waters, owner of the Mail Boat Princess, who captured this deer.

I have the following report from the Park Department, in which you may be interested:

"The deer was received at our Woodland Park Zoo in good condition Sunday morning at 10:00 a. m. and is a fine specimen, being nearly twice the size of our native deer. He is docile and can be approached and petted. He proceeded to make himself at home by announcing and proving the fact that he was boss of the herd. Attracted by the announcement in the daily papers quite a number of citizens and their families visited the Zoo on Sunday for the express purpose of seeing the new arrival."

I am also enclosing a copy of resolution passed yesterday by the Board of Park Commissioners expressing their appreciation for this gift to the city.

Yours very truly,
Hugh M. Caldwell,
Mayor.

WHEREAS, this department has recently been the recipient of a fine specimen of male Alaska deer, donated by Mayor Grant of Wrangell, Alaska, thereby adding to the attractions of the Woodland Park Zoo.

The Board of Park Commissioners, in appreciation of the thoughtfulness and public spiritedness of Mayor Grant, hereby extend to him a unanimous vote of thanks.

Signed:

R. J. Fisher, president.

Signed:

A. F. Farran, secretary.

Philosophy Suggested as a Help to a Better International Understanding

By GRACE A. TOWERS

Old ideals and purposes have undergone sweeping revision. New ways of living, new ways of thinking, reorganization of the structure are now in action. In the general readjustment it has been learned that the old creeds and beliefs, sufficient for their day have proved of little value for present day problems.

A new philosophy of thinking, more serviceable, more easily applied to our needs, called by some God, by others Right, Religion and Providence, seems to be bringing comfort and aid to a very large number of people and to be of marked benefit in helping them to meet the stern and trying perplexities of today. We have faced many crises during the last few years and it has been demonstrated that there was a vital need of some sort of thinking that would appeal to the majority and stabilize the tottering faith of a people in a just God.

The older philosophy was scientifically productive only in a limited degree. It spent itself somewhat too largely in unprofitable contentions, and it lacked a definite and commonly accepted plan of co-operative investigation. The vital problem of philosophy is human welfare and progress. The sufferings of the world within the past few years have brought the thinkers to understand that philosophy holds great potentiality as a determining factor in national and world affairs. The pressure of the world conditions which lately existed and which in a measure still exist, has generated a proof of this statement. We have had a perfect flood of books and articles on the subject of philosophy as it applies to the social and political fields.

A wrong philosophy can lead a nation to its ruin within a space of a few generations. A worthy one can as promptly and definitely determine a nation's progress and happiness.

If we ever achieve a world peace it will be accomplished through an international philosophy of peace. The thinkers of a nation sow the seeds, the people sooner or later reap the harvest. International peace involves a system of right thinking and right human relationships. It involves also an adequate plan for social reconstruction. These are the things for which the world must depend upon its thinkers. Fortunately, its thinkers realize their duty and are already busy at their task. Philosophical writing in books and periodicals indicate a common tendency to emphasize the forward look in a spirit of genuine concern for social progress. This is the normal result of a social unrest which seeks the realization of a safe and dependable international ideal. This new philosophy has entered very largely into the making of a new life in the various nations. It is believed by many that the time has arrived when national ideals can best be realized through cooperation in some form of international union. It is the theme and one of the supreme concerns of present day thinking. The modern idea is also to apply these scientific ideas as well as discuss them.

A great nation or a great race is dependent upon the performance of great actions proceeding from great motives. The fact that philosophy is a program of action rather than idea is indicative of our future. In this busy, exacting, problematic time, the world wants results and it means to cling only to that which can produce them.

We must remember that realism is never wholly at its best when unmixed with idealism. The physical and the metaphysical are not only mutually dependent, but they are two different phases of the same thing. This idea is the basis of the new philosophy. In it, both the seen and the unseen world have their place and consideration. Mind and matter are not rivals. Hope and achievement are partners. The things of the spirit and those of sense are jointly supreme.

The hard rock miners of Willow Creek are busy laying in moose meat and firewood for the long winter ahead of them.

Fort Yukon traders have done a good business this year. All the people have money and are making money. Fur is the main trade. From 250 to 300 people use this as a trading center. A great many men are married to Native women and apparently intend to stay in the North.

Do you know where the purest and best flavored maple sugar comes from? The flavor of Maple Karo tells you

Over a thousand tons of rich maple sugar from Vermont and Canada to make Maple Karo for the American family

The American housewife endorses Maple Karo this way:

Over five million cans were consumed last year. This is a greater sale, by far, of any kind of maple syrup sold.

If you are particular about the syrup you buy, and the price you pay for it—the new Maple Karo is your kind of syrup.

Perfectly delicious in rich maple tang—yet very moderate in price. So moderate that you can serve it every day, every meal. And all grocers everywhere have it.

Go to your grocer today. Get one can of Maple Karo. Try it just once. If you are not absolutely satisfied return it—and your grocer will give you back your money.

are no funds available for that purpose.

Mrs. John T. Towers, a soloist of unusual ability, has been gracious enough to give a concert for the benefit of the school. The success of the concert is assured in advance when it is known that Mrs. Towers is to sing. Mr. Upshaw will also contribute to the success of the event with his mandolin accompaniments.

Farewell Reception

Tendered Adjutant and Mrs.
Carruthers on the Eve of Their Departure

A farewell reception which was one of the most largely attended affairs ever given in Wrangell
was tendered Adjutant and Mrs.
W. J. Carruthers and their two little daughters in the Redmen's lodge room Friday evening.

The following pleasing program
was rendered:

Vocal Solo—Mrs. W. W. Mc-Laughlin

Reading—Miss Hazel Rees

Vocal Solo—Mr. William Paul

Mediaeval Play—King of the Cannibal Islands—Pupils of the Eighth Grade

Vocal Solo—Mrs. John T. Towers

Each of the above numbers were vociferously applauded and each of the soloists and the reader responded to their encores with delightful second numbers. At the conclusion of the program
Rev. H. P. Corser was called upon for a few remarks. Mr. Corser read some verses contributed by Mrs. Towers, relating to the departure of the Carruthers family for a new field. Mr. Corser's own remarks proved to be a presentation speech. Suitable gifts were first given the children and then a beautiful beaded Indian hand bag was presented to the couple. Upon examination the bag was found to contain $50.

Adjutant Carruthers responded with a few happy remarks in which he expressed the deep appreciation of himself and family to their Wrangell friends for their kindly manifestation of good will.
He said that regardless of where their work might call them they would never cease to have the most pleasant memories of their two years' residence in Wrangell.

Later in the evening the guests were invited to the banquet room where a delightful lunch was served.

Following the lunch there was a pleasant social time which lasted well into the night.

Adjutant and Mrs. Carruthers and two bright little daughters departed on the Princess Mary Saturday evening for Vancouver from which port they left for their new field of work at Nelson,
B. C.

As a supervisor of the Native work of the Salvation Army in Southeastern Alaska Mr. Carruthers was most successful. He got very close to the hearts of the Native people, and was regarded by the Native officers as their friend and counsellor.

Last month when it became known that the Carruthers family were to be transferred to another field the news was received with deep regret, not only in Wrangell,
but throughout Southeastern Alaska.

The well wishes of the entire community will follow this greatly beloved couple to their new home in the Dominion—the land of their nativity.

M. E. LeBlanc left for Ketchikan on the Jefferson.

Siberians to Learn English at Anadyr

Mrs. McLaren, who recently resigned from the teaching staff of the Nome public school to join her husband on the Siberian coast is said by representatives of the school board to be contemplating an attempt to establish a school for the study of English at Anadyr during the winter, according to the Nome Nugget.

Before departing for the Russian coast, Mrs. McLaren procured a considerable number of text-books for that purpose.
Many of the Russian traders are said to be greatly desirous of learning English to facilitate their trade operations with Americans, hence Mrs. McLaren will probably find a prolific field for her services. The Nome-Siberian trade is growing steadily and Mrs. McLaren's attempts to inculcate a knowledge of English among the Russians may have a most beneficial effect in bringing about a better understanding between the Siberians and Americans and improving trade relations.—Nenana News.

Two islands in Icy strait have been taken up by fox farmers.
An unlimited supply of food and ideal conditions are said to prevail.
